With a thought you could change what you've never really known
With a lie
You could take from the love they never showed Come along
Come along now it's not too far away
And the streams
They are running to an ocean that is dry
And the sands
Of the ocean are the prophets in the eye
Of the sage
Who has chosen to forfeit all he knows...I know
And you know, and you know now that some things
never change
In a world, in a world that seems bound by human pain
Come along, come along now it's not too far away
And beyond you will see the how the ever changing glow
It surrounds
All the feeling you never thought you'd know
Come along
Come along now it's not too far away
And you know, and you know now that some things
never change
In a world, in a world that seems bound by human pain
Come along, come along now it's not too far away...I know
And the streams
They are running to an ocean that is dry
And the sands
Of the ocean are the prophets in the eye
Of the sage
Who has chosen to forfeit all he knows...I know
And you know, and you know now that some things
never change
In a world, in a world that seems bound by human pain
know
And you know, and you know now that some things
never change
In a world, in a world that seems bound by human pain
Come along, come along now it's not too far away

I know...I know...I know
