With a thought you could change what you've never really known

With a lie you could take from the love they never shown

Come along, come along now it's not too far away

And the streams, they are runnin' to an ocean that is dry

And the sands of the ocean are the prophets in the eye
Of the sage who has chosen to forfeit all he knows, I know

And you know

And you know now that some things never change
In a world

In a world that seems bound by human pain

Come along

Come along now it's not too far away

And beyond you will see, how they everchanging glow
It surrounds all the feelings you never thought you'd know

Come along, come along now it's not too far away

And you know

And you know now that some things never change
In a world

In a world that seems bound by human pain

Come along

Come along now it's not too far away, I know

And the streams, they are runnin' to an ocean that is
dry

And the sands of the ocean are the prophets in the eye
Of the sage who has chosen to forfeit all he knows, I
know

And you know

And you know now that some things never change
In a world

In a world that seems bound by human pain

Come along

Come along now it's not too far away, I know
Yea

And you know
And you know now that some things never change
In a world
In a world that seems bound by human pain
Come along
Come along now it's not too far away, I know
I know, I know
