So now that your faith's gone who are you gonna trust?
Now that your conscience is crawling in the dust
I've been meaning to tell you sister
I've been meaning to tell you all

I'm carved from the chaos and stained by its reprise
And I've introduced myself for centuries
I've been meaning to tell you sister
About the master and margarita
But if you fuel the addiction you suckle its disease

And it drags you down
Drags you down
Drags you down
Drags you down
Please don't turn around

You're broken and battered, you've tried with all amain
Weaned by distraction, your story stays the same
I've been meaning to tell you sister
About the master and margarita
But walking through raindrops it fuel it's own disdain

And it drags you down (All you needed was an open invitation)
Drags you down (You said yourself you said you craved the complications)
Drags you down (You know the one who made you make the dedication)
Drags you down (You sell yourself you sell your soul)
Please don't turn around

And it drags me down (All you needed was an open invitation)
Drags me down (You said yourself you said you craved the complications)
Drags me down (You know the one who made you make the dedication)
Drags me down (You sell yourself you sell your soul)
Please don't turn around
