

Tea Party "The River"

Visit "The River" on MotoLyrics.com

Sailing down, down the Styx again
Without you my love I want to return but then
I see all my friends, they want me to join but then
They all melt away without you alone

And the river's running through my veins
Lately she don't seem the same
And the blood keeps calling out my name

I pass by the sins left by a different man
The tides brought them here, cast by a different hand
And the wisps of the winds blow with the Styx again
Pushing me on without you alone

And the river's running through my veins
Lately she don't seem the same
And the blood keeps calling out my name

And the river running down
And the river running down
And the river running down
And the river

My will must be strong to rise with a different light
My will must belong, I'm still pushing for different heights
And the wisps of the winds blow with the Styx again
The river runs red and I'm left alone

And the river's running through my veins
Lately she don't seem the same
And the blood keeps calling out my name
And the river's running

Help me baby, help me baby, help me baby, help me baby, yeah
Help me baby, help me baby, help me baby, yes

Visit Tea Party page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

