well i made my way back down to the valley right on past 83rd street that's where we once belonged but i'm gone, i swear, i'm long gone so give it up

throw your hats in the air and change just as they land you're saying we'll get out of here something tells me that you're too scared to go so the stairs that you could climb are the ones you've left behind and your eyes light up when we talk about the past God i miss those songs we used to sing talking like getting away would be the greatest thing well me, i got out, and you, you kept singing to me like that's really gonna to set this free

so give it up
you're saying we'll get out of here

like a ghost, you've been haunting all these dusty old roads and old homes the ones we swore we'd never go as for joe, oh i've seen him around then there's adam, he's afraid to go out i don't blame him i just wanted to go out to eat then there's mark goddamn i wish him the best we were kids back then as if we could progress and sometimes i, i just can't sleep thinking of everything we could have been

so give it up

but something tells me that you're too scared to go
