Something old, something new
Something special supposed
To be designed from me and you

Something borrowed, something blue
Something crazy that won't turn out
The way we want it to

Ringin' bells, hopes in wishin' wells
Pretty flowers that smell
Throwin' rice they'll think we're so nice
My suit, your gown of white

Stained glass rays, it's just a show for them
That doesn't matter anyway
And far away they'll hear trumpets play
On our wedding day

Our plan in store the night before
We'll pack our things
And tip-toe through the house
And out the door

Ran away for something more
Read the note laid on the suit
And gown we never wore

Ringin' bells hopes in wishin' wells
Pretty flowers that smell
Throwin' rice they'll think we're so nice
My suit, your gown of white

Stained glass rays, it's just a show for them
That doesn't matter anyway
And far away they'll hear trumpets play
On our wedding day
