Don't panic, my bags are staying unpacked And don't worry, I've got nowhere else to be
When the morning comes will you still be here
When the morning comes will I still be here
And don't cry, there's nothing to worry about And don't whine, we've all heard about it before and don't go looking for mistakes in me I don't think I can take anymore
