I don't need your worn out love anymore
Tug my heartstrings one more time oh no
Remember when you snuck in through his bedroom window
Socks were found beside the bed that weren't mine or yours
It's been too long since you've been honest with me
baby

I'll help you down off that high horse you're on
And if you don't care I'm out of here by dawn
It doesn't matter, I don't love you anyway
This whole thing would make a heck of a story Just suppose I told it right here right now!

You were waiting for me after school
We weren't worried about what to do
We walked to the coffee shop to talk
The hours passed by like minutes in New York

We were in love once as we both well know But you have stayed and I have grown Treat me like I have a clue in my head Cause all I along I knew you were playin on someone else

So I don't need your worn out love anymore
Tug my heartstrings one more time oh no
Remember when you snuck in through his bedroom
Socks were found beside the bed that weren't mine or
yours
It's been too long since you've been honest with me
baby
