Climbing up, on a hill that they knew well
And on that hillside, like shadows they fell Long before, the need for bow and shield
When hope spread out like a Tennessee field

Don't wait for me, in our spot by the giving tree
You won't find my spirit here, oh my heart, find it hard

And i leave with so, so many things undone
Would you give my love, to the, to the one i'm thinking of
And i never noticed how the wind, will never speak of me again
Regret and i, we walk alone again tonight
In the place we made, we made our pact
What Red Cloud wants, they can't give back

Teach them young, that history is taught by those who've won Great white father playing favorites with his favorite sons
A people fall, like leaves before the storm Sleep no longer oh you Choctaw and the Iroquois

Poisoned our water with fire, pushing us from our homes

Taken every promise, leave them broken, broken like stone

And i leave with so, so many things undone
Could you give my love, to the, to the one i'm thinking
And i never noticed how the wind, will never speak of
me again
Regret and i, we walk alone again tonight
In the place we made, we made our pact
Play it slow
Took every promise, leave them broken like stones

And i leave with so, so many things undone
Won't you give my love, to the, to the one i'm thinking

I'd give up so much to begin, to be at home with you again
Regret and i, we walk alone again tonight
What Red Cloud wants, they can't give back
What Red Cloud wants, they can never give back
What Red Cloud wants, they can't give back
What Red Cloud wants, they can never give back
What Red Cloud wants, they can never give back
