Anywhere but here
And any place but this
We're living out our lives
In suspended animation
Waiting for the next frame to appear
For some reason I
Took a wrong turn somewhere
Between black and white
And now I'm stuck in this location
Counting the days till I get back home

These walls were built to break
How much stress can they take?
I won't leave you behind
I know how to escape
Our wounds will heal in time
These cells will know the pain

You got no regrets
And no boundries
Well I've got a lot of both
Chained to hurting balls of anger
Kept me in this prison for sometime
Now I'm crawling out
Through those tunnels that
I dug out underground
No one notices or hears me
No one ever listened anyway

These walls were built to break
How much stress can they take?
I won't leave you behind
I know how to escape
Our wounds will heal in time
These cells will know the pain

What are you waiting for some kind of sign?
You either grow or you die

These walls were built to break
How much stress can they take?

I won't leave you behind
I know how to escape
Our wounds will heal in time
These cells will know the pain
