So you drove him to the top
and then you pushed him down...
But I can't help but wonder
would you have obtained the same results
if he had climbed up on his own?

It's never way too hard a task,
still it sucks to end up last
knowing you'll be there to constantly remind him,
And i'm not saying that it's wrong
still there's always a price to pay...

Tell me when did you stop and think about the worries on your mind?
and how about those memories and friends you left behind?
Think of all those lies...

With all the love and trust they gave you,
I thought you'd never run and hide
Who ever said success ever comes without any
sacrifice...

So many favors but so little appreciation.
When will you value all those things that they have done?
All they really want
Is your conformity;
but it's the only thing you grasp outside their reach.

With all the love and trust they gave you,
I thought you'd never run and hide
Who ever said success ever comes without any
sacrifice...

With all the love and trust they gave you,
I thought you'd never run and hide
Who ever said success ever comes without any
sacrifice...
