Someday they'll see the actual value of life
Even if it takes something more than just effort to Find what they were looking for,
Not everything's inside a store,
There's so much room for so much more
If you would stay true to your heart.

And I can see through your mind, real honesty's a lie...
And I can see through your mind yea...

You take life for granted,
But you look so happy about it, yea...
You know that its wrong, you know that its wrong.
The tears that we've wasted,
The people we've hated,
We know that its wrong, we know that its wrong...

Even though we are different, we mind our own business,
I wish they would try that too.
But they cant, they cant live without being Somebody else that they can't be so they take it all out on you...
(They take it all out on you)

And I can see through your mind, real honesty's a lie...
And I can see through your mind yea...

You take life for granted,
But you look so happy about it, yea...
You know that its wrong, you know that its wrong.
The tears that we've wasted,
The people we've hated,
We know that its wrong, we know that its wrong...

And even though
We try so hard
To avoid the many thoughts
That bring us back
To the start,
We reach the same conclusion that...

You take life for granted...
(You take life for granted)
