Cherry bomb, you are a mystery
Exploding sparkling quiet nights
My teenage heart pumped all my misery, baby
To fingertips that might ignite

And all along you knew my story, didn't you?
And all night long I carried yours
Your blood was mixed with wine and robbery, baby
And left us always wanting more

So don't sing me your songs about the good times
Those days are gone and you should've just let 'em go
And god help the man who says "If you'd have known me when"
Old haunts are for forgotten ghosts

Cherry bomb, your love is surgery
Removing what you don't regard
And every breath felt like a funeral, baby
While you were packing up your car

And with the window down, I hear you're tired now You borrowed everything and wore all your old welcomes out
Well shame on you, my love, you sold your youth away
Memories for sinking ships that never would be saved

So don't sing me your songs about the good times
Those days are gone and you should've just let 'em go
And god help the man who says "If you'd have known
me when"
Old haunts are for forgotten ghosts
Old haunts are for forgotten ghosts

And shame, shame, shame, shame on you
You kept your mind and heart and youth just like a tomb
Shame, shame, shame, shame on you
You kept your mind and heart and youth just like a
tomb

Just like a tomb
Just like a tomb
Just like a tomb

Don't sing me your songs about the good times
Those days are gone and you should've just let 'em go
So god help the man who says "If you'd have known me when"
Old haunts are for all those ghosts

And don't sing me your songs about the good times
Those days are gone and you should've just let 'em go
And god help the man who says "If you'd have known
me when"
God help the man who says "If you'd have known me
when"
God help this man, my baby, if you'd have known me
when
Well old haunts are all we've ever known
