I woke up at three a.m. and stumbled in the dark i don't sleep much anyway, since we've been apart but that's just one of many things, i've adjusted to so well,
'cause i surrendered long ago, and now finally i can tell

Chorus: i'm getting used yo not getting over you not wondering how to shake a hurt that won't go away not knowing where to turn is something i thought i'd never learn it's really nothing new i'm just getting used to

i head down highway 40 past the place we used to go i don't atop to cry anymore i just driva by real slow and i don't feel the dagger when somebody speaks your name i guess that i'm just growing more accustomed to the pain

Chorus:
