as I walk the town in the dead of night the streets are emptied out and I've never felt, no I've never felt more home as I pass the buildings where people live the lights are all turned off and I never felt, no I never felt alone as I crash the club where the dreamers dance the floor is like a sea and they pull me in, yes they pull me in the hyve as I sway myself to the leading kick I merge into the crowd and the world becomes, yes the world becomes alive we love the leading kick and we wake up in the park where sun has slain the dark with the night before deep inside our core we reignite that spark and lust for more

I ask who are you, who are you really don't you belong here, or can't you be missed when you are with them you want to be lonely when you are lonely you go to them you seem a mirror of everyone else but if you are all them what is yourself as we splice ourself in a thousand bits we see just who we are we are everyone, we are everyone plus me and we put ourself back into one piece and tidy up our hair when you've found yourself you want everyone to see see me
