When I pull in the drive

Where your car used to be

It doesn't hurt me like it used to

I can walk through the door,

And not wonder anymore

Where you are, like I used to

I can go down the hall,

See the pictures on the wall

And not miss you

But I just can't bring myself to go into...

CHORUS

The room

Where I spent every night with you

And the light of the moon

Came through the window

And I held you

We were so close

And it's just too soon

For me to go into the room

I'd remember too much

If I opened that door
And I'm not sure if I could face it
The bed's emptiness
Would remind me you're with
Someone else, and I couldn't take it
So, I sleep on the couch
In our living room now
Since our love died
Cause I'm still not ready yet to go inside...

REPEAT CHORUS

..Where the light of the moon
Came through the window
And I held you
We were so close
And it's just too soon
For me to go into the room
