I took a walk by the sea
Nothing else just for me
Yesterday was a long long time ago
There's a man and he's sighing
It's all he's got to keep from crying
His shattered dreams.
Have been worn down by life
And I wonder now
How a man gets so far down
Where's the pride and the glory
Where's the pot of gold and I....I
I look to the children
I took a walk by the sea
I'd forgotten what it meant to me
Some things we should carry from the past
There's a boy and he's singin'
And in the wind his words are ringin'
His innocence it is buried in us all
Now I look and see
That boy inside of me

May have seen a storm or two

But the dream is alive

and I....I

I look to the children

I look to the children

And I look around

So many so far down

Just search inside yourself

But the dreams alive

and I....I

I look to the children

I look to the children
