

Terry Reid "It's Gonna Be Morning"

Visit "It's Gonna Be Morning" on MotoLyrics.com

It's gonna be morning before its night again
It's gonna be morning before its night again
And when the clock strikes twelve I'll take me a southbound train
And I'll never ever see the lonesome night again, round here
No I'll never ever see the lonesome night again

Well it's gonna be noon before the sun goes down
I said it's gonna be noon before the sun goes down
When the clock strikes twelve I'll think about the passing years
And I'll never ever cry another wasted tear, round you baby
No I'll never ever cry another wasted tear

Woah, I calling your name out
I said I want you to know how I feel Tell I'm the one now
Just let me know that love is real

I said it's gonna be morning before its night again
I said it's gonna be morning before its night again
When the clock strikes twelve I'll think about the
passing years
And I'll never ever cry another wasted tear, round you
baby
No I'll never ever cry another wasted tear

Well it's gonna be morning now
Said it's gonna be morning
No I'm never ever ever gonna cry
I said the last thing I'd ever do is make you try

Visit Terry Reid page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.