Stayed true to the things I knew when I was younger

And food and love was all but left to hunger

It's when I stray from the truth as I grow older

Too much leaves an empty hollow hunger

I think about you on a moonlit night

And all the stars all seem to weep

When there's so much love to lose

There's never any time for sleep

Look at me doing all these things without you

We always laughed at and you were untrue

Where was it we tried hard not to go?

I think that's how I finally came through

All the things we took for granted

The words still live on in my head

All the times I took for granted

All the words I never said

I think about you in the moonlit night

And the stars all seem to weep

When there's so much love to give

There's never any time for sleep

So I stayed true to the things I knew when I was younger

And you and I was all but left to hunger

It's when I stray from the truth as I grow older

Too much leaves an empty hollow hunger

Live on without you

Live on without you
