Why did you leave me all alone, why didn't you tell me you were going home

Everything changes now you're gone, making me wonder how to carry on

Over and over you gave to me, I wish I had told you what you meant to me

Why does it always have to end, losing a loved one is so hard...

Oh my Lord, is it right? By the light of the darkest night

You're never gonna see, you're never gonna see me
crying

Where's the warmth of the sun? Was there something that I should have done?

You're never gonna see, you're never gonna see me
crying

What I would give just to hear you laugh, but all I have left is just a photograph

Oh to have known you all those years, wish I had known how to dry your tears

Everything matters when you're young, everything shatters when the day is done

Everything falters in the end, losing a loved one is so hard...

Oh my Lord, is it right? By the light of the darkest night

Where's the warmth of the sun? Was there something that I should have done?

crying

So many feelings rushing in, it's too late for thinking how it could have been

Who knows the reason, was meant to be, it's gonna be lonely

Will you wait for me
