she sells her dreams in the morning
round the breakfast table Â´for the day has begun.
she gives them guidance and protection, they give her food and a room.

he sells his dreams on a sunday, paints his pictures of a much better way.
has to believe it all means something to the widows and the old men who have caused to tend their fate.

she sells her dreams, wouldn't you like to buy one?
just to know what it means
to be dreaming it all away.

i sell my dreams in the evening.
set them to music like there's no other way.
once were the things that really mattered
now they just don't seem important since you danced them all away.

she sells her dreams, wouldn't you like to buy one?
just to know what it means
