

The Devoted Few

"You Are Not Your Friends"

Visit "You Are Not Your Friends" on MotoLyrics.com

hey susan where's your head, did you lose it down the beach in the heat last night I heard you screaming red at the boys in their cars as they sped by and now you hold your breath as you write down the words on the walls tonight oh susie don't be deaf, can't you hear them, can't you feel them calling you out does it always feel the same " a little take a little gain

are they knocking down your door " do you hide a little more
and the beatings that you get " come only from regret
oh susie can't you see I need you hey susan where's your dress, where's the girl with the heart that I once knew you are not your friends, you can't be left to your imagination can you I've never seen you so obsessed, I can feel it in your eyes you're so see through

oh susie don't be deaf, can't you hear them, can't you
feel them calling you out
does it always feel the same " a little take a
little gain
are they knocking down your door " do you
hide a little more
and the beatings that you get " come only
from regret
oh susie can't you see I need you

hey susan where's your head, did you lose it down the
beach in the heat last night

Visit The Devoted Few page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.