"Where The Truth Lies"

I don't mean to call you out
Yes I do, I'm just lying to please you
You know you would do the same for me
Seasons change but it always feels like winter
When you're alone
We've had our share of falling-outs
Outside everyone can see
Your tail lights as your car goes
It's wrapped around a lamp post before dawn
Seasons change but it always feels like winter
When you're alone
Don't fail me now
The lines are drawn too thin and we're divided
You're no good at finding the ways out
We'll sit you down
We'll talk this out
Just stick by me 'til morning hits your eyes
Don't listen to a word they say
Or take a hint and maybe find a shred of truth
Truth is they're just envious of you
You build up walls to keep out hope
Hoping everyone will watch you
Open wide the floodgates and
Wash away the remains 'til you're gone
Seasons change
But it always feels like winter
When you're alone
Don't fail me now
The lines are drawn too thin and we're divided
You're no good at finding the ways out
We'll sit you down
We'll talk this out
Just stick by me 'til morning hits your eyes
You're helping me out
I can see deception in your eyes
You're helping me out
And I will find the truth in all your lies
You're helping me out...
