(by Bruce R. Hornsby)

Woke up this morning looking at the screen
There's a couple of men talking
I'm not sure what they mean
There's a conversation many men running wild
We learn about the world while they're fighting in the aisles

Here we go
What do you say, what do you know
You've got your life and you watch it away
Well, it's just another day in this old town
So get down

Home Shopping Channel's got us by the eyes
Scrambling to the phone, ordering porcelain flies
Talk to the women, talk to the wives
Everybody's buying important things for their lives

Here we go
What do you say, what do you know
You've got your life and you watch it away
Well, it's just another day in this old town
So get down

He's a high performance engine with Jesus as the fuel
Old father's handing out forty acres and a mule
Preaching the word of prosperity
Make a little money, they might just put you on t.v.

Here we go
What do you say, what do you know
You've got your life and you watch it away
Ain't no big thing it's just another day
Ain't no big thing so let it ring
Let it ring, George

Turn off the lights, honey, then turn off the set
Life around here don't make a lot of damned sense
As I closed my eyes, I saw in my mind

Somebody selling me a nickel for a dime

Here we go

What do you say, what do you know

You've got your life and you watch it away

Well, it's just another day in this old town

So get down, ain't no big thing so let it ring

In this old town so get down

It's another day so go ahead

Go ahead

Everybody go
