You override me up so high,
let me walk, cause I don't fly.
The view is such a beautiful scene,
but come down, into my sky.
Let us walk this mile,
maybe stop a while, let us take in everything.
Want you here with me, taste the air that I breathe,
and we can be just anything,
Just anything...

I took for granted what was mine,
as she walked into my sight
I kissed the flavour of another one,
she exposed my darker side
And I barely escaped, from my chain of mistakes, but I thought of everything.
It was you in my head, when she nearly misled me, but you, you're everything.

Well there's give, and there's take, in everything
And you'll be all that I need,
Somehow I do believe
And I swear, I've arrived,
It's my state 6
And you'll be all that I need, somehow I do believe...

You redirect me, change what affects me, connecting me to you.
And if I ever write a prophecy how to make, to make it through.
You'd be in every line, all your words I'd define,
so to help somebody who,
Might be loosing there way, bring them back round and say,
I've been there, I did that too...

Well there's give, and there's take, in everything
And you'll be all that I need,
Somehow I do believe
And I swear, I've arrived,
It's my state 6

And you'll be all that I need, somehow I do believe...
