We used to stand on the same line
Not only face to face but also side by side But now you hide, behind the wall instead, created by your so called friend

But don't think differently yeah you said you be there, you said you never leave me

You so quick to live your brand new life But even your best drink can't hide that you're a liar But now it seems that I'm struggling to breath, while you choke the life out of me

But don't think of me differently, you said you be there, you said you never leave me in one way sounds so different its the company, is the company you keep my eyes are open wide, do i the things that I, was been ever told that deep inside

everyone ones something, everybody's searching, we all look for the same things everyone ones something, everybody's searching,
we all look for the same things

Searching away, it's just the company, the company you , searching away it's just the company, the company you keep.
