We're strangers
And we're ugly
'Cause we've lost so very much
Slip your tongue now
Slip your beauty
Inside this very heart
When everyone is sleeping
I'll come and see you girl
I'll bring you flowers
For your lonely world

Lovers are strangers
And we are too
Look what love has
Turned us into

So much older
So much older
What happened

I thought we were divine
But all we're left with
Are these bodies
That are now
Entwined

Summer is almost wasted
And so we are too
I know I am just a station
That you are a passing through

Lovers are strangers
And we are too
Look what love has
Turned us into
Lovers are strangers
And we are too
Look what love has
Turned us into
