The night is young, and so am I
And I need to live before I die
And you can sleep when you are older
And we are all here and it's not too late

So I can't let you, no, I won't let you go
Sure, I've got plans like everybody else
But we will dance until we make the most of this
So let tomorrow take care of itself

The sun has set, and here I stand
With restless feet and willing hands
This is the last day of the first of your life
And we are all here and it's not too late
And we are tired of taking up space

So I can't let you, no, I won't let you go
Sure, I've got plans like everybody else
But we will dance until we make the most of this
So let tomorrow take care of itself

This is your voice
And these are your words
And this is your song

The night is young

I won't let you, no, I can't let you go
Sure I've got plans like everybody else
But we will dance until we make the most of this
So let tomorrow take care of itself
