

Hall Effect, The "Fallen"

Life seems to know what you can't tell the thoughts restrained inside your head the darkest fears
This world I know took all my strength the healing doors are locked for me for all my sins

And though I want to hold you until my night gets over and I have no things to do everything is turning into one

I've fallen again and you don't know
I've fallen again and you don't own my own today
I've lost my strength this day

I've failed in all, you taught me well the lesson's done and I'm to blame my fault is deep You tried so hard to fix my brain to clear my thoughts and you don't see, oh no, that I'm not there, yeah

And though I want to hold you until
everything is turning into one

I've fallen again and you don't know
I've fallen again and you don't own my own today
I've lost my strength this day

everything is turning into one

I've fallen again and you don't know
I've fallen again and you don't own my own today
I've lost my strength this day
I've fallen again and you don't know
I've fallen again and you don't own my own today
