Have you told her son about the alcohol and medicine Or the wasted days while friendships frayed Where you could barely carry your weight

Flip the lights down or pretend you're not alone And spill the secrets You bought and sold for rock and roll dreams

Flip the lights down or pretend you're not alone And spill the secrets You bought and sold for rock and roll dreams

Have you told her son how you up and leave all your loved ones
How all the lies slip past your tongue
You choke them down like smoke in your lungs

Flip the lights down or pretend you're not alone And spill the secrets You bought and sold for rock and roll dreams

Flip the lights down or pretend you're not alone And spill the secrets You bought and sold for rock and roll dreams
