"Violence breeds violence, repression breeds retaliation,
and only a cleansing, of our whole society,
can remove this sickness, from our souls"

"I'm gonna continue to say it to America -- The nation in which we live, is the SUPREME culprit!"

"And here's the proof!"

"Look there's a cop on your left, don't say nuttin.."

"In my neighborhood, cops was dangerous.." -> Chris Rock

"Cops degrade you.." -> Richard Pryor (well alright)

"Cops put a hurtin on your ass man, y'know?" -> R.
Pryor

"Gotta break those chains.."

"Good lord we've got to stop them!"

"This can't go on!"

[Yazeed]

For years, we've been travelling the underground railroads

Freedom in sight, we travel through the night despite attempts to keep us locked, mentally

Time to educate, and overtake oppressors and RULE like we was meant to be

Poverty, projects, welfare, unprotected sex equals stress

Baguettes bring five you minutes of fame

Twenty-five years of death threats, no regrets

The prison moratorium project, keeps the isle in check

Can't forget, Black Panther Eddie Ellis

Black Power that devour, Redsauer society members

I enter, one-two-five, at the Community Justice Center

Logic Avenger, change, rattle caps

Dr. Cringer, blaze the stage with a controlled rage Tone boots in cahoots with my troops Indeed Yazeed's flow speed switches which is fatal for these major labels Hah, fables of incarceration affect Generation X
Cause and effect (Yo, what's this nigga sayin?)
I'm sayin, to the government, more education Less incarceration, less disrespect, expect if you keep violating us, we'll have no other alternative but to strike where you live

Right here and now is the ending of the lies Thanks for listening, something's got to change right
now
Right here and now is the ending of the lies
Thanks for listening, something's got to change right
Right now..

Prison moratorium project
