"Sleep Sweetly"

It's so damn late at night, my head won't stop racing.
Your car pulls out of site, and now I'll just be waiting
For you to call and tell me that you're home
So I can sleep and know that you are sleeping safe and on your own.

Sweet dreams, Bear.
I'll be waiting patiently, I swear.
And sleep sweetly, Bear.
I hope you find comfort when you're there.

Maybe I should write another song about her
And sing it late at night while this orchid wanders
And close my eyes pretending that she's near.
'Cause every time she's here it drives me wild,
Like poetry in gear.

And sweet dreams, Bear.
I'll be waiting patiently, I swear.
And sleep sweetly, Bear.
I hope you find comfort when you're there.

And sleep sweetly, Bear
