Did somebody hit the lights,
Cos now my eyes hurt,
Somebody's digging up dirt,
Our secrets are out for all of them to see,
But at least you're here with me.
And the music's too loud,
And it's making us talk high,
And their ears are opened up wide,
Listenin' to every word that we say,
So they can twist it some other way.
How did we get this far,
We started way back,
I ran so fast I could have a heart attack,
I'm glad I didn't lose you,
You didn't lose me,
But I'm feeling like we're living in a movie.

(Chorus)

They say we're troublemakers.
They say we're troublemakers.
They say we're troublemakers.
Whatever puts a smile on your face.
They say we're troublemakers.
They say we're troublemakers.
They say we're troublemakers.
Cos the things that put a smile on our face,
Cause trouble in their space.

(Verse 2)

I'm here spreading all the news,
Cos they messed up my plan.
We're hearing things second hand,
Not written in stone, but scribbled in sin.
And they just don't understand.
We stare at a screen to drown them out,
And there's nothing to talk about.
I bet they're all laughing,
And dropping our names,
But I just won't play those games.
How did we get this far,
We started way back,

I ran so fast I could have a heart attack,
I'm glad I didn't lose you,
You didn't lose me,
But guess what? We're not in a movie.

(Chorus)

One day I woke up,
And I realized I was never gonna be normal,
I said "Fuck it.
So be it."

(Chorus X 2)
