I can remember when the doctor said i would die
Cos cancer had struck, I didn't know why?
I started to feel pain, I cried
I couldn't tell no one, I lied

I was only young, I didn't know
Which direction I should go
But death was coming, it was always there
It chose me, it's so unfair (It's unfair, it's unfair.)

Cos there's a black cross on front of my door
They say I won't be living no more
They say there's no remedy or cure
Until I saw you
Cos there's a black cross on front of my door
They say I won't be loving no more
They say there's no remedy or cure
Until I saw you

You changed the way I looked at life
Then you stabbed me in the back with a knife
You are my directional light
And I need you

So promise me you'll stay
And keep me living for another day
And then I'll be able to say
I love you

Cos there's a black cross on front of my door
They say I won't be living no more
They say there's no remedy or cure
Until I saw you
Cos there's a black cross on front of my door
And I won't be living no more
They say there's no remedy or cure
Until I saw you
