She sits with a book
And writes with the ink
All that she feels, express what she thinks
Lines of hers build up on the page
Stories and moments, love and her rage
Even though the world doesn't care
She knows that she'll always be there for herself

She is all that she needs
When the world lets her down
She will always be there
In spite of them all for herself

Some broke her heart, emptied their lies
Stamped her down and laughed at her cries
She questions herself, sends all that she feels Breaks herself down, builds herself up like steel
Even though the world doesn't care
She knows that she'll always be there for herself

She is all that she needs
When the world lets her down
She will always be there
In spite of them all for herself

Some think she's strange
But really don't know what's inside her
And when times are rough
And no-one cares
She'll always be there

She is all that she needs
When the world lets her down
She will always be there
In spite of them all for herself

She is all that she needs
When the world lets her down
She will always be there
In spite of them all
For herself, ohh

For herself
