"bon voyage" was something that i once said

and eventually regretted.

well, it's come up again...and i wonder if the same mistakes i used to make
could be remade.

cause "i've been through this before"
well i've said that too.

there's just so much that we can fake before we break ourselves into-two.

twenty two. the years can hardly catch up with the years of playing catch up.
must there always be a catch?
what we really want is just ahead,
just over that hill.

and the more i learn, the less i try to climb.
the more we change, the more we wish
we stayed the same,

the more we try to fake ourselves into beliefs:
"the grass must be green somewhere!"

twenty two-the years can hardly catch up,
the years are playing catch up.
