It was getting to be difficult to walk
She was always so close but never right on
And the roads she chose to walk were narrow
Alleys with names
Hard to understand

Her head was dangling back and forth
She wished to lay it down
But it would roll away
So she put her foot down with care
While she leaned on everybody
So as not to fall

And they told her
The latest tattletales

ÃfÂçâ, Ñ,Â[] I collect stuff like that, you've got To have a thing or two to tellÃfÂçâ, Ñ,Â[].
She said
While her one lip fell down
From her mouth
She picked it up off the ground
But, when she was to put it
Back in place again,
The lip would fit no more,
The lip would fit no moreÃfÂçâ, Ñ,Â!
She very rarely blinked her eyes
'Cause it just might happen she would miss out on things
So when she opened both her eyes up wide.
They popped right out
And rolled along
To see just the things she Wanted to see

ÃfÂçâ, Ñ,Â[] I collect stuff like that, you've got To have a thing or two to tellÃfÂçâ, Ñ,Â[].
She said
While her one lip fell down
From her mouth.
She picked it up off the ground
But, when she was to put it

Back in place again,
The lip would fit no more,
The lip would fit no more
