Album : Seven Minutes in Heaven how could you? why would you? I feel so used for every time I helped you out and then felt right it's depressing confessing I'm just your way of testing the truth in two wrongs not making right and you thought the one night stand gives you some upper hand I'm happy you feel victory in spite could you define a friend we're not just odds and ends you polish off when something isn't right so now I'll tell you the hearts you've broken your words unspoken you change sides like seasons committing acts of treason and you've been a coward well even in your finest hour you're associated with everything I've hated now take a bow you've won last place in the one man race how could you? why would you? I feel so used for every time I helped you out and then felt right
