Album : Seven Minutes in Heaven and sometimes I wonder why you run and hide this is the chance of a lifetime and some times I wonder how it would sound pick up the phone its ringing something I can't describe how we stay up all night just planning it out right and that number stares me down when it comes back around it's up to you mike you'll learn to walk she'll grow to see you're taking first steps something's still lacking 'cause she never heard the perfect words he screams at you through me ambitions and admirations please take this situation he's on a plane going down in flames still the thing that keeps him sane is your name he's ok I'm ok and before impact I stare back and you're sitting in the next seat to insult injury can I please go to sleep cause I'm so tired but I'm still wired 'cause she's like the gasoline and you're the machine you've driven me to singing three words I can't put into drive where is she tonight? probably with him right and now you think that you're broke down when she comes back around she'll pick you up mike hesitation motivation will take you to your destination
