

Hole Inside, A "The Promise"

How could you be so cold when I was crying it makes me think that you deserve to be dying If you don't pick up the pieces that's left of your pathetic life the thoughts you had in secondhand
will put you underground and when you fail to breathe I'll be there

You promised me and I was blind
I believed that you were only mine
I should have left, but I stayed
I didn't know that you were so unrealable

You think I scream in pain, but darling I've already forgot your name you will never archive in a team and now I tell you why I see you as a lie

You promised me and I was blind
I believed that you were only mine
I should have left, but I stayed

Has your bottle runned out my last drip just fell to the floor so now I wonder, whats nothing when I thought you were something this time I'm the bag that picks up the stone not the scissor that breaks on it
