I hear a story once again
A tragic death a tragic end
A family tries to comprehend
Beginning with some questions
Why was there a fate deciding time?
A higher power in charge of a life

You never, you never, you'll never know
Something turned long ago
Why was there a fate deciding time?

You?ll never know, how much time
You could be walking on your last line
You?ll never know, so take a chance
This could be your last day on this blind romance

As you face a hidden fear
A day you thought was no where near
Has now summoned you face to face
In a blur over and done you've grown a bit
You've wised up some
With more respect for life and things to come

You never, you never, you'll never know
Something turned long ago
Why was there a fate deciding time?
