Strange, yet not so, faces wet with rain
Blurred, yet I know, which is why I came
Strange, yet not so, faces wild but sane
Dazed, yet I know, which is why I came
And it makes no difference, who I take
And it doesn't matter which I take
Strange, yet not so, bodies set in shade
Dark, yet I know whose hunt pining game
Strong, yet not so, bodies outstretched lay
Still, yet I know whose hunt pining game
And it makes no difference, who I take
And it doesn't matter which I take
Still in my head is the ringing of your voice
So, to me it's still the same
I've got no need to put a name to a face
For a frameless voice with your name
Strange, but not so, faces veiled in shade
Dark, yet I know, which is why I came
Strange, yet not so, faces veiled in rain
Blurred, yet I know, which is why I came
And it makes no difference, who I take
And it doesn't matter which I take
