You stood up just after dinner
Headed straight up to the door
You looked back, bold like a winner
Said "darling I don't need you no more"
For ten long years I've been your woman,
Your wife, sister, mother and love (sister, mother and love)
Never once you really talked to me
Your mind was always high up above

Since you've gone away
I've got a million games to play
I've got your 80 megabytes full of computer games
Space Invaders, Sargon, Crystal Quest,
I've got no break, I've got no rest
I spend my days on your
Computer games

You bought me a brand new toaster,
An iron and a washing machine
(That was my birthday)
You bought me a vacuum cleaner for Christmas or for Easter
But you never gave your heart
All your life you've been locked up in your work
You never came see the sun (never came to the sun)
Every night with your computer,
I still wonder if you were really a man

Since you've gone away
I've got a million games to play
I've got your 80 megabytes full of computer games
Space Invaders, Sargon, Crystal Quest,
I've got no break, I've got no rest
I spend my days on your
Computer games

I sold the hoover and the toaster
The iron and the washing-machine
I bought myself a super-booster
Now I'm the fastest mouse on the scene.

I got rid of all your rubbish
Of all your mathematical tape (mathematical tape)
I put your differential equations in the trash-bin
I bought you a thousand fancy new games.

Since you've gone away
I've got a million games to play
I've got your 80 megabytes full of computer games
Space Invaders, Sargon, Crystal Quest,
I've got no break, I've got no rest
I spend my days on your
Computer games

Since you've gone away
I've got a million games to play
I've got your 80 megabytes full of computer games
Space Invaders, Sargon, Crystal Quest,
I've got no break, I've got no rest
I spend my days on your
Computer games
