You speak without a sound
It all comes back around
I should have brought this down
It's never too late to remind me
That nothing seems to last
When we all change so fast
And leave things in the past
But photographs seem to live on
I think you know how you've made me so uptight
When right things go wrong, all the wrong things feel
so right
It's just a matter of understanding what we see inside
When right things go wrong, all the wrong things feel alright
The smoke has finally cleared
Along with many years
Away with all my fears
I'm sorry I don't seem to know you
And this is what I've made
A haunting serenade
I knew what you became
And everything seemed to move on
When right things go wrong, all the wrong things feel
so right
It's just a matter of understanding what we see inside
When right things go wrong, all the wrong things feel
alright
We need to understand what we see inside (8x)
I think you know how you've made me so uptight
When right things go wrong, all the wrong things feel
so right
It's just a matter of understanding what we see inside
When right things go wrong, all the wrong things feel
alright
