You can play all your coins into the corner
Let some new clown put his head down on your floor
You can pick up all your tricks as you are leaving
But you just can't hurt me anymore

I held you close before the frozen fountain
Kissed your soft lips as they lulled the gulls to shore
Now you can say just what you like
I don't even care if you believe it
You just can't hurt me anymore

Ah yeah, I'm so glad to know what's on your mind
I'm glad, I'm glad
I'm glad about it all the time

Let the south wind blow its warmth in through your engine
'Til your heart as cold as stone begins to thaw
Then you'll sleep so soft and gently in your knowledge
But you just can't hurt me anymore

You just can't hurt me anymore
You just can't hurt me anymore
