When I am weary then I try to think of the words that you told me When I said I was a boy

on a lonely dark fare in the middle of nowhere nowhere to turn to and nowhere to hide

when I have nowhere hide then I think of the words you that told me

not a man who knows what he can and what he cannot do
'cause I don't even know who I am when I don't know who I am then I think of the words that you told me when I stepped out of the boat tried to walk on the waves but I sank

Oh I sank deeper into the grave of my thought

When I am deep in the grave of my thought I try to think of the words that you told me that day in my kitchen

it was flooded by my tears but dried by your words:
"why are you weary?
I love you more!"
