ARISING DAWN - Lyrics
Written by Vienna Harmse

Gloomier as the nights continue to grow longer.
Lonelier as loneliness settles in.
A face in the dark, our walks in the park,
All gone, I surrender to the arising dawn.

Facts are the matter with our fights that arose.
Details you needed for my attention to grow.
Everything was you and what you wanted me to do.
But now my heart bleeds with the arising dawn.

People didn't care and only stood and stared,
When I watched the sun set and then rise again.
Alone I still was, alone and apart,
From you, yes you knew you were my shining star.
To you I was drawn and now alone I watch the arising dawn.

CHORUS

Our love could not grow and had nowhere to go.
We began again, with every arising dawn.
Beginning the day, watching the sun rise,
We lay naked, together outside on our lawn.

I took you for granted, you ordered me around
Passion was our love as feelings we felt were sound.
I'm in shock, with my heart torn,
I stand alone watching the arising dawn.
