tell me who you think you really are just like me you're afraid to go too far i'm ready to begin, but i'm always on the outside looking in the astronauts are calling in the sky circling around to stay alive and your future's in the past and your face is always pressed against the glass looking in

how can it be the end
with all the science in the world to breath again
how can it be the end
when your reaching for tomorrow but your holding yesterday in your hands crashing on the underground again spooning desperation from the can and faith has come undone in the garden you were staring at the sun feeling numb

with all the science in the world to breath again
how can it be the end
when your reaching for tomorrow
but your holding yesterday in your hands

BRIDGE and i know we've got a ways to go but the wheels go round' and round' to try to get home and i know it feels a million miles away i won't let you go i'm turning around on my own carry on now

how can it be the end
when your reaching for tomorrow
