"Knocking Nails Into My House"

This house is mine but the men they say is not
You see this house is the only thing I've got Running 'round they work so hard and fast
But they don't know my house is built to last

Here comes a man, in a van
And he's looking very angry at me

They're knocking nails into walls upon my walls
They run and hide as the old grey ceiling falls
Eagerly they gather in my shed
They've gone for now, so I can ease my head

Here comes a man, in a van
And he's looking very angry at me

They're knocking nails into my house
They're knocking nails into my house

They work so hard, all is left is my front room
There goes a wall, oh I think I spoke too soon

Here comes a man, in a van
And he's looking very angry at me

They're knocking nails into my house
They're knocking nails into my house
They're knocking nails into my house
