Tears subsiding, Michael lifts the gun up to his head

Sorry for the part he played in making Maggie dead

As he pulls the trigger and he feels the hammer fall

His mind goes back a year ago, and he remembers all, and how he loved her

Chorus:

Oh, lead me on, lead me on, Lord, lead me on

Oh, lead me on, lead me on, Lord, lead me on

She said she'd been with other men, but that was long ago

Long before she fell in love with him, he ought to know

But Michael would not believe her, he told her to her face

And then took on with another girl, put Maggie in disgrace

But when they found her dying, he realized what he'd done

She'd died because he'd blamed her for things she'd never done

A loud explosion rocks the air, and things go quite insane

As the gun hurls out the shell that crashes through his brain

chorus repeats out
